

Camp Springs

(Read from last week.)

Camp Springs congregation was presented to three times Sunday. In the afternoon Elder Bill from Union took charge and preached as a Shepherd, and the Baptist there have no pastor, after which he proceeded to shear the sheep. He received a liberal collection. The Sunday school is just fine at Camp Springs, and the school has ordered a new organ. Things there are done in decency and in order with Prof. Gandy leading.

I am at Aransas this week preaching at night, have fine congregations, who seem appreciative. I find in this community several families I know in east Texas. Sam Rameyer is well located in the community, owning a good farm and it well stocked. J. A. Morris, also from Eddie County, who also owns a good farm. Prof. Bryant is the efficient principle of the school. He is from Tyler. Bro. J. G. Patterson and I visited the home of John Driskill, an old man who is very religious. We had a fine religious service in the home.

He is sick in bed.

W. G. Brooks of Terrell now lives in this community. He has bought a home here. Ruben Burrow from Grayson county has also bought a farm here. This part of Scurry country has so very many fine citizens. It is an inspiration to be among them.

J. W. Griffin, preacher in charge, Snyder Circuit.

Mrs. Paxton of Abilene is visiting her son, Guy E. Paxton and family.

J. S. Doak and family of Tokohka were visiting A. C. Gerrit and family and other relatives in the City Sunday.

TEXAS NOT DESTINED FOR SECTIONS—NEFF

Texas was never destined to be divided into sections, according to an address by Governor Neff here last night at a celebration of his signing of the bill-making Corpus Christi a deep water port and giving the city protection against Gulf storm waters.

The day is not far distant when ships loading at Texas ports will take on cattle from West Texas, wheat from North Texas, lumber from east Texas, rice from South Texas, oil from Central Texas and cotton from all Texas, Neff said.

"He is narrow minded who thinks of Texas in sections."
